Exxon Mobil Corporation 2004 Worldwide Contributions and Community Investments

Public Information and Policy Research

As a science-based company, ExxonMobil is committed to supporting organizations that research significant domestic and foreign policy issues and promote informed discussion on issues of direct relevance to business and the company's ongoing operations. In 2004, worldwide contributions for Public Information and Policy Research totaled $6.5 million with $6.1 million focused within the United States.

We support programs that foster international understanding and engagement, and help shape U.S. foreign policy. For example, we fund the Council on Foreign Relations to support constructive public and private discussions, and to publish Foreign Affairs, a journal on global issues. Our involvement with the Asia Society, the Africa Society, the Corporate Council on Africa, the Arab American Institute, Mosaic, the Business Council for International Understanding and other similar organizations facilitates American understanding about other societies and cultures.

Organizations dedicated to researching free market solutions to public policy problems also receive support from ExxonMobil. For example, we support the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research and the Competitive Enterprise Institute, both organizations dedicated to strengthening the foundations of freedom and to the principles of free enterprise.
