How the American Legislative Exchange Council Uses Corporate-Funded “Scholarships” to Send Lawmakers on Trips with Corporate Lobbyists

State by State: Who Gets Them and Who Pays

Acknowledgments

This special report was written by Lisa Graves, the Executive Director of the Center for Media and Democracy (CMD), an investigative watchdog group that publishes PRwatch.org and SourceWatch.org and that created ALECexposed.org in July 2011 after a courageous whistleblower provided CMD with bills secretly voted on by corporate lobbyists and state legislators behind closed doors at meetings of the American Legislative Exchange Council. CMD was joined by Common Cause in investigating ALEC, along with an exposé in The Nation magazine and the investigative reporting of Beau Hodai.

This initiative has grown through the efforts of People for the American Way, the Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights, Color of Change, Progress affiliates, labor unions, Greenpeace, countless other watchdog groups and bloggers at VLTP, Daily Kos and other sites, along with activists helping to expose ALEC. The result has been hundreds of news stories about ALEC.

As a result of innumerable collaborative and individual efforts, more people are aware of ALEC, its agenda, and its corporate-funded operations than ever before.

For this report, data on ALEC “scholarships” were obtained through open records requests and other research by D.B.A. Press founder and freelance investigative reporter/CMD contributor Beau Hodai; Brendan Fischer, CMD’s Staff Counsel; Nick Surgey, Staff Counsel of the watchdog group Common Cause; and Caroline Isaacs of the American Friends Service Committee-Tucson.

Assistance for this report was provided by Beau Hodai and CMD’s staff—Mary Bottari, Brendan Fischer, Rebekah Wilce, Friday Thorn, Sara Jerving, Harriet Rowan, Alex Oberley, Sari Williams, and former staffers Eric Carlson and Max Abbott, as well as Common Cause’s Arn Pearson, Vice President for Policy and Litigation; Doug Clopp, Director of Strategic Partnerships; and Nikki Willoughby, Director of Public Engagement.

This report builds on early efforts to sound the alarm about ALEC over a decade ago by People for the American Way and the National Education Association, among others. It is also indebted to earlier coalition work through “ALEC Watch,” which was led by the Defenders of Wildlife and the Natural Resources Defense Council and produced a work called “Corporate America’s Trojan Horse in the States,” with a detailed survey of state ethics laws in relation to ALEC.

Executive Summary

The American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC) has raised and spent an estimated $4 million in funds from its corporate backers since 2006 to pay for state lawmakers' trips to meet with corporate CEOs and lobbyists at ALEC sponsored events at posh retreats, according to internal ALEC documents and other investigative work.

This special report analyzes information obtained through open records requests from D.B.A. Press, a site featuring original investigative reporting and source materials; the Center for Media and Democracy; and Common Cause—information that ALEC has tried to keep a closely guarded secret.

Although ALEC claims to be a tax-exempt “charity”—a status now under legal challenge by Common Cause and others—it has quietly raised and spent millions from some of the biggest corporations in the world over the past decade to fly state lawmakers around the country to resorts where they are wined and dined by corporate leaders and lobbyists, and treated to exclusive parties at professional baseball games, cigar parties, and skeet shoots, all at ALEC corporations' expense.

The scheme works like this: ALEC state chairs (hand-picked legislators and private-sector members) solicit corporate money that goes into a “Scholarship Fund” that is then used to pay for lawmakers' trips. Records show that ALEC legislators know who's paying their way—some state leaders even urge lawmakers to send thank-you notes to their patrons—but everyone else is kept in the dark.

ALEC claims to the IRS that it does not have to report the money spent on elected officials because it is just holding the funds “in trust” for lawmakers. But at the same time, it promises corporate donors that they can get a tax write-off for their donations.

This influence-buying scheme is illegal in some states, and should be in others.

“With our success rate at more than 20 percent, I would say that ALEC is a good investment. Nowhere else can you get a return that high.”

Sam Brunelli, then-Executive Director of ALEC ¹

Key findings of this report include:

- ➔ ALEC raised $1,994,815 for its corporate slush fund during 2006-2008, of which $1,811,905 was spent on lawmakers' trips.
- ➔ Based on this, plus incomplete data for 2009-2011, we estimate that ALEC has raised and spent over $4 million from corporations for lawmakers' trips since 2006.
- ➔ The biggest corporate donor to ALEC's slush fund was PhRMA – which kicked in $356,075 in 2010 alone – followed by AT&T, Bayer, Eli Lilly, UST Public Affairs (tobacco), Pfizer, Crown Cork & Seal, Altria, Verizon, and Blue Cross Blue Shield Association.
- ➔ The #1 state for ALEC slush funds was South Carolina, at $200,565, followed by Georgia, Mississippi, California, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Colorado, Oklahoma, Arizona, and Ohio. 42 states had slush fund activity.
- ➔ Some legislators were frequent flyers. At least 20 state legislators received travel worth nearly $7,000 or more during 2006-2008.
- ➔ ALEC slush funds were used to pay for or directly reimburse travel expenses for legislators, including airfare, hotel rooms and meals. But once public officials arrived, ALEC corporations spent untold additional amounts to wine, dine and entertain them. ALEC membership may cost legislators $50 per year, but they get much more in return from their corporate benefactors.
- ➔ At least four states – Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska and Utah – have taken steps to bar legislators from taking travel-related funds from corporate interests via a conduit like ALEC. But at least three other states – Colorado, Indiana and South Carolina – specifically exempt ALEC from state gift or lobbying laws.
- ➔ The slush fund's donors, top states, repeat players and state-by-state details can all be found in the report appendices.

Given the inherently unethical and potentially corrupting nature of ALEC's slush fund scheme, we recommend that, at a minimum, existing state gift limits, bans and disclosure rules be applied to ALEC "scholarships" or modified to ensure that they do. In addition, each ALEC slush fund expenditure and donor for all past years should be immediately disclosed to the public.

ALEC's Corporate Slush Fund by the Numbers

Big Spending

Since 2006, ALEC has raised an estimated $4 million from its corporate members to send lawmakers on trips.

Biggest Spender

The largest known “private sector” donor is PhRMA, the trade group for big drug companies, which gave ALEC $356,075 for lawmaker trips in 2010.

Which State's Lawmakers Take the Most Money

The state whose legislators received the most ALEC “scholarship” funds in a three-year period: South Carolina lawmakers received $200,566.

Over a Half-Million Dollars a Year (2006-2008)

Corporations have given $664,938 a year on average, and the average spent is: $603,968.

Scores of Corporations Involved

100+ corporations have funded the trips. The biggest are: PhRMA, AT&T, Bayer, Lilly, UST, Pfizer, Crown Cork & Seal, Altria, Verizon, and Blue Cross/Blue Shield—some of the world's biggest drug, tobacco, and phone companies.

About a Million Bucks in the Bank

In recent years, ALEC has had about one million dollars in the bank at the start and end of each year available for lawmaker travel for meetings with corporate lobbyists at resorts.

Hundreds of Lawmakers

Average number of lawmakers who get corporate-funded travel through ALEC: more than 300 each year. Many are frequent flyers. Over 1,300 checks from ALEC were cashed in three years alone.

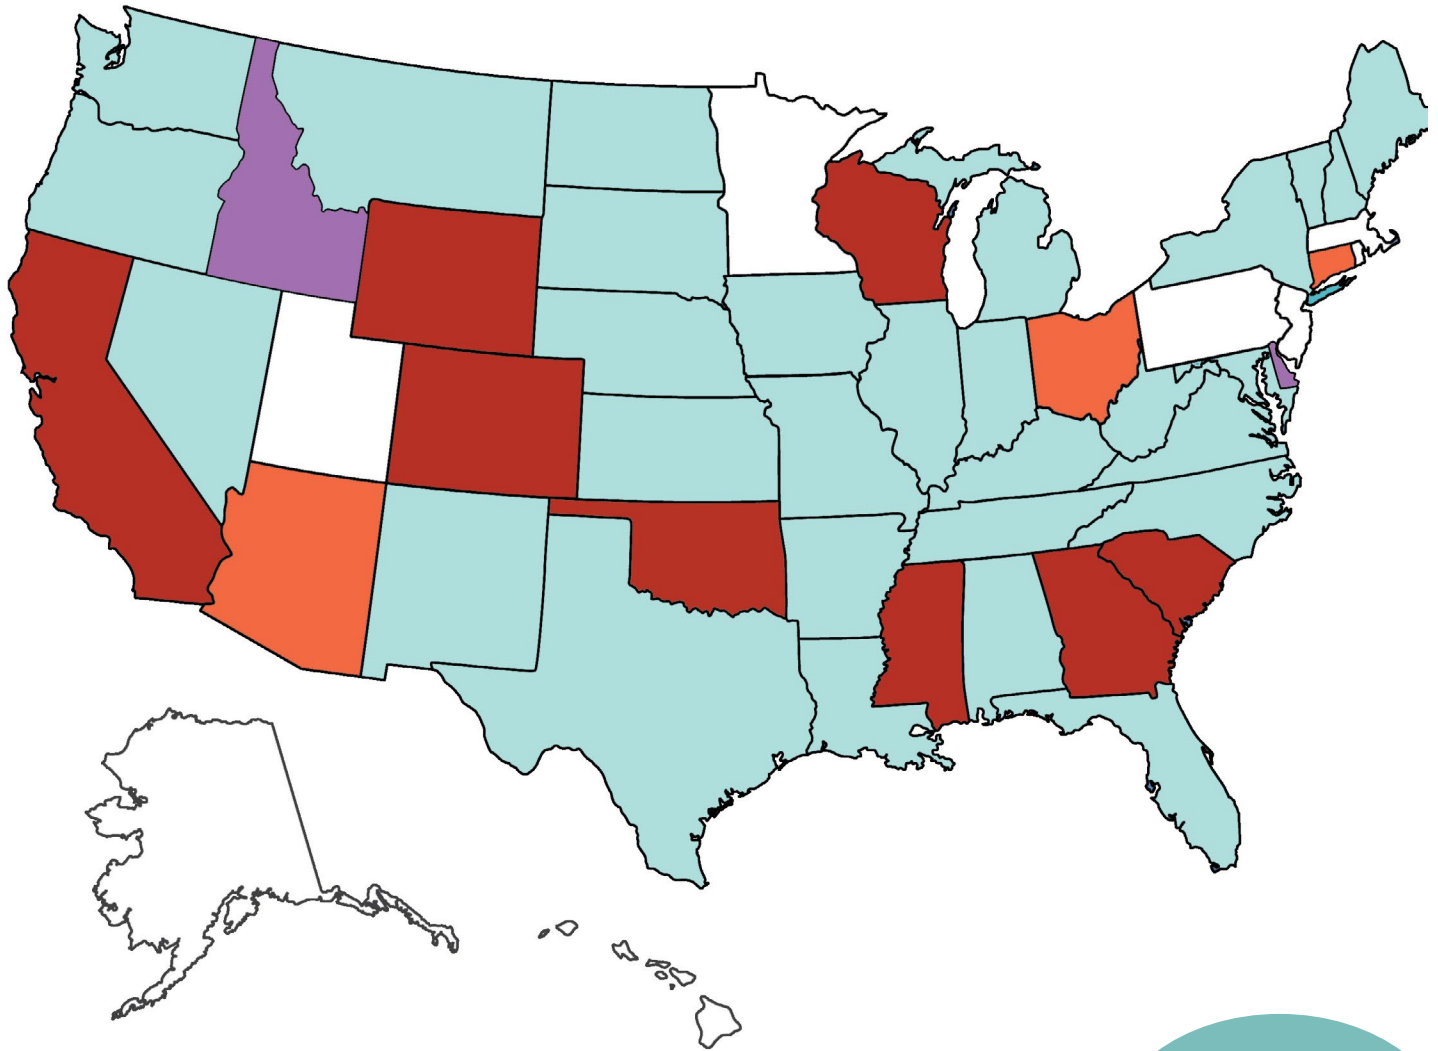

A Majority of States Are Involved

Number of states known to have money paid out from the corporate slush fund in recent years: 42 states out of 50. Some states, like Minnesota, bar legislators from taking gifts of travel from lobbyists via a conduit like ALEC.

Introduction

This special report analyzes new information about how some of the biggest corporations in the world fund trips for state lawmakers to meet with their lobbyists at resorts across the country through the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC), a “charity.”

This data, which was secret until discovered in open records responses, shows that corporations seeking to change state laws quietly gave nearly $2 million for travel by state legislators in a recent three-year period (2006-2008.* Based on that data, we estimate that ALEC has taken in well over $4 million from corporations for lawmakers’ trips since 2006. And corporations spent money beyond that on numerous dinners and other perks for lawmakers that were not passed through the travel slush fund ALEC created.

ALEC and its leaders have persistently refused to tell the press which corporations were funding these trips and in what amounts.

This previously hidden information about the sources and extent of these gifts of travel has come to light only through open records requests submitted to state elected officials.

Although ALEC prefers to dub these gifts “scholarships,” this report calls them what they are—gifts—because a trip is a thing of value being given to these elected officials.

ALEC has created a scheme to funnel money from corporations to pay for legislators’ trips, amounting to a million-dollar+ slush fund that leaves constituents in the dark about who is really footing the bills for their representatives.

This report exposes that scheme.

*The vast majority of money was paid by ALEC to legislators for their travel to ALEC resort meetings with lobbyists, but it includes some reimbursements to restaurants where legislators were wined and dined. According to open records responses from 2011-2012, the money as a whole was spent to benefit legislators, either through travel or meals and drinks.

ALEC is a “far-reaching national network of state legislators that...affects all levels of government. No organization in America today can claim as many valuable assets...that have influence on as many key decision-making centers.”

ALEC History ⁴

ALEC’s Funding

ALEC describes itself as the largest voluntary membership group of state legislators in the country, but CMD’s analysis of ALEC’s funding reveals that over 98 percent of its revenue comes from corporations and sources other than state legislators’ “dues.”

Legislators pay $50 a year ($100 per two-year legislative session) to be part of ALEC. In some cases, such as the Iowa House of Representatives, taxpayers pay the dues.

In contrast, corporations pay dues for membership in ALEC at a rate of $7,000 to $25,000 per year.

Companies also pay fees of between $2,500 and $10,000 to sit on ALEC “task forces,” where corporate lobbyists vote as equals with lawmakers on templates to change state laws in the form of ALEC bills.

On top of that, corporations kick more money into state “scholarship” funds to cover travel (airfare, hotel, and other expenses) for lawmakers to attend ALEC meetings at resorts where legislators are wined and dined at corporate expense and urged to make items on the corporate wish list into law.

Corporations often pay additional sums to be listed as a sponsor of ALEC meetings. The prices vary but have been as high as $50,000 or more.

ALEC's Structure

ALEC appoints “public sector” and “private sector” co-chairs in each state (lawmakers and lobbyists) to advance its legislative agenda and raise money for trips. Lobbyists also sit on ALEC task forces where they get “a VOICE and a VOTE” on bills. ⁵

ALEC claims it disbanded its “Public Safety and Elections” task force—which approved controversial bills making it harder for Americans to vote and easier to get away with shooting someone—but there is evidence some of its work goes on.

ALEC has a Public Sector Board that consistently endorses bills approved by task forces. It meets jointly with a corporate board, which includes many companies that have governed ALEC for years, while legislative leaders have come and gone.

ALEC's sustaining funders include some of the world's biggest corporations: Exxon Mobil, Altria, AT&T, Koch Industries, State Farm Insurance, Peabody, and GlaxoSmithKline. Their lobbyists also sit on task forces alongside representatives of ideological groups like David Koch's Americans for Prosperity.

ALEC describes itself as a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization, but a review in 2011 showed that 99 percent of its legislative leaders were Republicans (there was one Democrat out of 104 legislators in leadership positions).

ALEC's Agenda

ALEC describes its agenda as advancing the “free market,” but many of its bills redirect Americans’ tax dollars away from strengthening the public’s institutions to increase the profits of industries that are part of ALEC. Many of the beneficiaries of ALEC laws are out-of-state or foreign companies whose primary interest is not the well-being of the constituents of ALEC legislators.

ALEC also indoctrinates legislators with skewed statistics and distorted analysis⁶ in support of the agenda of these special interests.

ALEC’s core objective is to change U.S. law,⁷ one state at a time—as Bill Moyers noted in his documentary, “The United States of ALEC.”⁸

Countless bills like these have been filed in state legislatures without any disclosure of ALEC’s role in them.

ALEC claims it does not lobby⁹ but boasts to its members that over 1,000 ALEC bills are introduced a year and about 20 percent become law.¹⁰ ALEC has told companies that funding ALEC gets the highest return on investment.

ALEC’s legislative agenda has included

- » Making it harder for Americans to vote
- » Making it harder for unions to organize
- » Stopping needed benefits for workers
- » Promoting trade laws that outsource jobs
- » Limiting damages for dangerous products
- » Blocking efforts to address climate change
- » Limiting rules that protect air and water
- » Privatizing schools, prisons, and assets
- » Detaining more immigrants, for longer
- » Opposing Wall Street reforms
- » Opposing health insurance reforms
- » Stopping limits on bank fees and interest
- » Opposing taxes on windfall oil profits
- » Opposing limits on machine guns
- » Opposing taxes on investment income
- » Privatizing Social Security and Medicaid

More than 1,000 ALEC bills are introduced each year; hundreds become law.

ALEC “operates much like a dating service, only between legislators and special interests. It matches them up, builds relationships, [and] culminates with the birth of special interest legislation...”

Wisconsin Rep. Mark Pocan in *The Progressive*¹²

ALEC Exposed

Despite concerns raised about ALEC in recent years, the dramatic breakthrough in public awareness of ALEC is due in large part to the work of the Center for Media and Democracy (CMD) and Common Cause. CMD launched its site, ALECEXPOSED.ORG, in mid-2011 by analyzing and exposing over 850 ALEC bills provided by a whistleblower and also built a growing resource for reporters and advocates to connect the dots between ALEC bills, legislators, corporations, and “experts.”

Common Cause has worked with CMD and many other groups for the past year to continue the investigation into ALEC and push out the ALEC story in the states. In April 2012, Common Cause filed an IRS whistleblower complaint against ALEC based on thousands of pages of additional internal ALEC documents showing extensive lobbying by the tax-exempt group.¹¹ Others—including Marcus Owens, the former head of the IRS’ nonprofit tax section, and the Voter Legislative Transparency Project—have also urged the IRS to consider holding ALEC and its corporate funders civilly or criminally liable for all the lobbying ALEC facilitates without disclosure.

Other public interest groups like People for the American Way and Progress Now!, along with labor unions affected by ALEC’s agenda, have worked to educate the American people about ALEC. And, Color of Change launched a powerful corporate campaign that has engaged new audiences of citizen activists. Greenpeace and many other groups, bloggers, and concerned citizens have also joined the movement against ALEC’s undue influence.

In the wake of heightened public scrutiny of ALEC, 41 major for-profit corporations have announced that they stopped funding ALEC—including Wal-Mart, General Electric, General Motors, Amazon, and Coca Cola—along with four nonprofit groups, including the Gates Foundation. Some 70 legislators, both Republicans and Democrats, have publicly dropped ALEC this year as well.

Impact of Information

In the wake of heightened public scrutiny of ALEC, 41 major for-profit corporations and four nonprofit groups have stopped funding ALEC, and 70 legislators have publicly dropped ALEC.

What's the Deal with ALEC "Scholarships"?

Kept in the Dark

Not only does ALEC enable corporations to secretly vote beside lawmakers on model bills to change state laws, but it also provides a conduit for corporations to buy influence with legislators through gifts of flights, hotel rooms, and other perks and to whitewash these gifts as ALEC scholarships.¹³

ALEC and the lobbyists and lawmakers who participate in this scheme have generally refused to disclose which corporations are paying into ALEC's slush fund for trips. But Americans have a right to know if their elected representatives are being flown to resorts to meet with corporate lobbyists and adopt their bills at corporate expense.

It is only because of partial compliance with state open records laws that the extent of the influence peddling facilitated by ALEC is even partially coming to light. The investigative work of reporters and watchdog and faith-based groups—Beau Hodai, D.B.A. Press founder, freelance investigative reporter, and CMD contributor; CMD Staff Counsel Brendan Fischer; Common Cause Staff Counsel Nick Surgey; and Caroline Isaacs of the American Friends Service Committee-Tucson—unearthed the financial data in this special report.

ALEC's History of Hiding the Truth

When asked about the slush funds by reporters in the past, ALEC has refused to identify donors, and instead referred them to the group's federal tax returns. Those filings not only did not disclose the identities of corporations funding the travel of elected officials, but also did not disclose the amount of money coming in or being paid out.

ALEC's lack of disclosure of its spending is deeply misleading. Take 2008, for example: If you had examined ALEC's federal tax return for that year looking for the figure the IRS requires nonprofits to disclose if they are paying for the travel for state elected officials you would have found zero, a box of nothing (see image at right)

Elsewhere in its 2008 tax filing, ALEC notes a "liability" with a cash balance of $1,053,457, described as "Scholarship Funds Held as Agent." ALEC's accounting cloaks from public view the amount of money it took in and spent that year to pay for the "travel or entertainment expenses" of state lawmakers. But, due to our investigation, we now know ALEC spent $593,653 on legislator travel and which corporations that funded trips in 2008 and other years.

ALEC's entry:

Now in the Light of Day: A Half-Million Dollars+ Each Year for Legislators' Travel

The data we uncovered provides a thorough snapshot for a recent three-year period, 2006 to 2008. The information we discovered includes the identities of all of the corporate donors to the travel fund and all of the public officials whose trips were paid for in those three years, along with the amounts and dates. We also have partial but illuminating data for 2009 to 2011.

Due to the patchwork of state laws regarding the reporting of gifts or travel reimbursements, there is no way — without this data—for concerned citizens to discover all of the legislators who took scholarship funds and which companies interested in changing state laws helped pay for the trips.

Major Findings

Corporations Funded A Lot of Trips

The total amount of money companies gave to pay for lawmaker trips and events in a recent three-year period (2006-2008) was nearly $2 million ($1,994,815, almost all of which, $1,811,905, was spent). That averages about $600,000 a year ($603,968) spent on travel for public officials. Even with that amount of spending, ALEC still kept about a million-dollar scholarship balance in the bank, counted as a “liability” owed to public officials.

Based on that data, we estimate that ALEC took in well over $4 million from corporations for lawmakers’ trips since 2006. And corporations spent money on lawmakers beyond that on numerous dinners and other perks, which were not passed through the travel slush fund ALEC created.

Over 100 corporations have funded the trips, including Koch Industries, but PhRMA gave the most: $356,075 in 2010. Other big funders are AT&T, Bayer, Lilly, UST Public Affairs (tobacco), Pfizer, Crown Cork & Seal, Altria, Verizon, and Blue Cross/Blue Shield Association—some of the world’s biggest drug, tobacco, and phone companies

A Lot of Lawmakers Took the Trips

Hundreds of state legislators have received corporate-funded travel through ALEC: over 300 state legislators per year. It appears that over 1,300 checks were cashed in one three-year period (2006 to 2008) alone.

Some Legislators Were Frequent Flyers

At least 20 state legislators received travel worth nearly $7,000 or more in that three-year period. They are listed at the end of this report.

Some State Delegations Spent Six Figures in Corporate Trip Money

The state whose lawmakers received the most from the ALEC “scholarship” fund for the three-year period with complete data was South Carolina, whose legislators took $200,566 in corporate-funded trips and whose legislature has expressly exempted ALEC from the state’s gift limits for lobbyists.

Rounding out the top five were states as diverse as Georgia, $170,990; Mississippi, $157,158; California, $127,200; and Wisconsin, $116,700. Some of these states may not be the most populous but they were popular with corporations willing to fund lawmakers’ trips.

Whose lawmakers raised the most for the fund in one year?

Ohio raised $130,000 from corporations in 2011.

ALEC’s scholarship scheme is calculated to keep the public in the dark about which corporations are footing the bill and how much the bill is.

What ALEC's Slush Fund Has Bought

Beyond unparalleled access by lobbyists to lawmakers, what ALEC corporations pay for through the scholarships is airfare for lawmakers, hotel rooms for their families, and other expenses. This is often in addition to other donations to ALEC to underwrite and co-sponsor events, plus whatever fees a corporation pays to join ALEC and vote on task forces with legislators.

The scholarship fund has also been used to buy expensive dinners for legislators at places like posh steakhouse Smith & Wollensky, although meals are sometimes put on a corporate credit card. ALEC members like Russell Smoldon of the Salt River Project, an Arizona public-private utility, know just how valuable such perks are. Smoldon told D.B.A. Press in November 2010:

“We do a nice job with special events. We just kind of take it on ourselves because I want things to be nice for these guys who make 24,000 dollars a year.”

For state lawmakers, who nationally earn an average of $35,000 per year, an all-expense-paid trip to a posh resort where they are wined and dined at lobbyists' expense is a substantial benefit.

Posh Resorts for ALEC Trips

ALEC's major meetings and task force “boot camps”—like the one held last January at a Ritz Carlton on Amelia Island, Fla., to discuss privatizing public education—typically occur at posh hotels and are closed to the press and public.”¹⁴ (A list of other ALEC resorts is available at the back of this report, detailing spending by year with images of the locations of ALEC meetings for lobbyists and lawmakers.)

“Endless Sandy Beaches...”

It is not unusual for ALEC to promote its meetings in vacation-like terms. One invitation encouraged legislators, saying: “come and experience endless sandy beaches, sunny days, beautiful sunsets and the cool gulf breezes.” The meeting was held at a great hotel, near a golf course where ALEC funder Reynolds tobacco paid for a golf clinic and tournament for legislators and lobbyists.

Bring the Whole Family!

ALEC meetings are described as “networking opportunities,” but lawmakers are encouraged to bring their families. According to ALEC's 2008 & 2009 IRS forms, it spent a combined $549,230 on childcare, which it calls “Kids Congress” (for kids, six months to 17-years old) and which is offered at a low rate to lawmakers and lobbyists.

But Don't Forget the Legislation

ALEC meetings are not all dinners and ballgames or skeet shoots sponsored by the National Rifle Association. During the day, lawmakers are urged by private sector ALEC funders like the American Bail Coalition to introduce its bills, and the state legislators on ALEC task forces secretly vote with lobbyists to approve bills to be introduced across the nation.

“ALEC has created a clever scheme with lobbyists—to funnel money from corporations for lawmakers’ meetings—that hides the benefactors and their influence peddling.”

What About State Gift Laws?

Every state in the country has gift laws that ban, limit, or require disclosure of what lobbyists and other interested parties can give of value to legislators. Yet, in most states, ALEC's "scholarship" scheme has slipped by under the radar screen. In all, 42 of 50 states had some ALEC slush fund account activity between 2006 and 2011.

Records show that at least four states have taken steps to bar legislators from taking travel-related funds from corporate interests via a conduit like ALEC.

Minnesota. Since 1997, the Campaign Finance and Public Disclosure Board has interpreted state laws barring gifts to apply specifically to ALEC scholarships.¹⁵ The Board found that corporations with lobbying interests were responsible for funding the gifts, and it ruled that filtering the funds through ALEC "does not isolate the corporations from their status as givers."

Massachusetts. Since 1988, the State Ethics Commission has barred legislators from accepting gifts of travel expenses from any organization of state legislators if its corporate members have an interest in matters before the state. The ruling was about gifts of travel for legislators to attend meetings with manufacturers, but its terms appear to cover ALEC travel "scholarships" as well.

Nebraska. The Accountability and Disclosure Commission barred lawmakers from accepting any contribution of over $50 from the ALEC scholarship fund in 1995. Nebraska law bars state senators from accepting gifts (including costs of travel and lodging) of more than $50 per month from a principal, a lobbyist, or "anyone working on behalf of either." The Commission ruled that—whether intentionally or incidentally—ALEC was being used as a conduit by Nebraska lobbyists and their principals to funnel gifts to state lawmakers in the form of "scholarships" for travel and lodging, exceeding the limits in state law.

Utah. The Beehive State also apparently stopped the scholarships after "It got to a point where ALEC fund raising looked to some like a lobbyist was buying a trip"¹⁶ because legislators were asking lobbyists to give so they could attend ALEC meetings.

On the other end of the spectrum, at least three state legislatures have specifically exempted ALEC from gift or lobbying laws: South Carolina, Colorado, and Indiana.

A handful of states force taxpayers to pick up the tab for public officials to go to ALEC conferences where corporate lobbyists get an equal say in votes on bills. For example, Pennsylvania had $0 in ALEC scholarships in 2006-2008, but the state's taxpayers paid over $300,000 over several years for trips and other ALEC events, including $3,000 on "cheesecake lollipops" for ALEC meetings over the past several years, according to Keystone Progress, an affiliate of ProgressNow!¹⁷

This approach is equally inappropriate because ALEC's core activity is to provide its private sector members and their lobbyists with a "unique" partnership, in ALEC's words, with lawmakers to change legal policy. Requiring taxpayers to pay the cost of flying legislators around the country to vote behind closed doors with corporate lobbyists about changing state laws adds insult to injury.

ALEC v. NCSL

Some ALEC members argue that ALEC meetings should be funded by taxpayers because states fund the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL). But, unlike ALEC, NCSL does not allow corporate lobbyists to vote with legislators on bills, and its leadership posts alternate between Democrats and Republicans, regardless of ideology. NCSL's objective is to improve governmental functions. In contrast, ALEC has touted its unique mission as giving the private sector an equal voice and vote on changing the government.

And It's Tax-Deductible?

ALEC wants to have its cake and eat it too. The organization claims that slush fund donations do not have to be reported to the IRS because ALEC just holds them "in trust" for legislators to spend, yet it tells corporate donors they can claim a tax deduction for their gifts.

Hard to believe? In 2009, ALEC told the IRS that:

"ALEC is the recipient of funds from various outside organizations and individuals which are to be used exclusively for scholarships on behalf of state legislators. Scholarships are payable, upon approval by the relevant state chair, to State Legislators to reimburse them for travel expenses incurred in attending meetings of ALEC. The amounts received and disbursed by ALEC for such purposes are not considered revenue and expenses of ALEC..."

Imagine if a corporate lobbyist simply put a half million dollars in a bank account for lawmakers to use for trips to meet with her company about legislation she wanted passed.

But a letter surfaced earlier this year from ALEC board member and legislative co-chair for Louisiana, Rep. Joseph A. Harrison, offering corporations a tax write-off for ALEC slush fund donations. On government letterhead, he solicited a $1,000 tax-deductible contribution per company for trips while stating that:

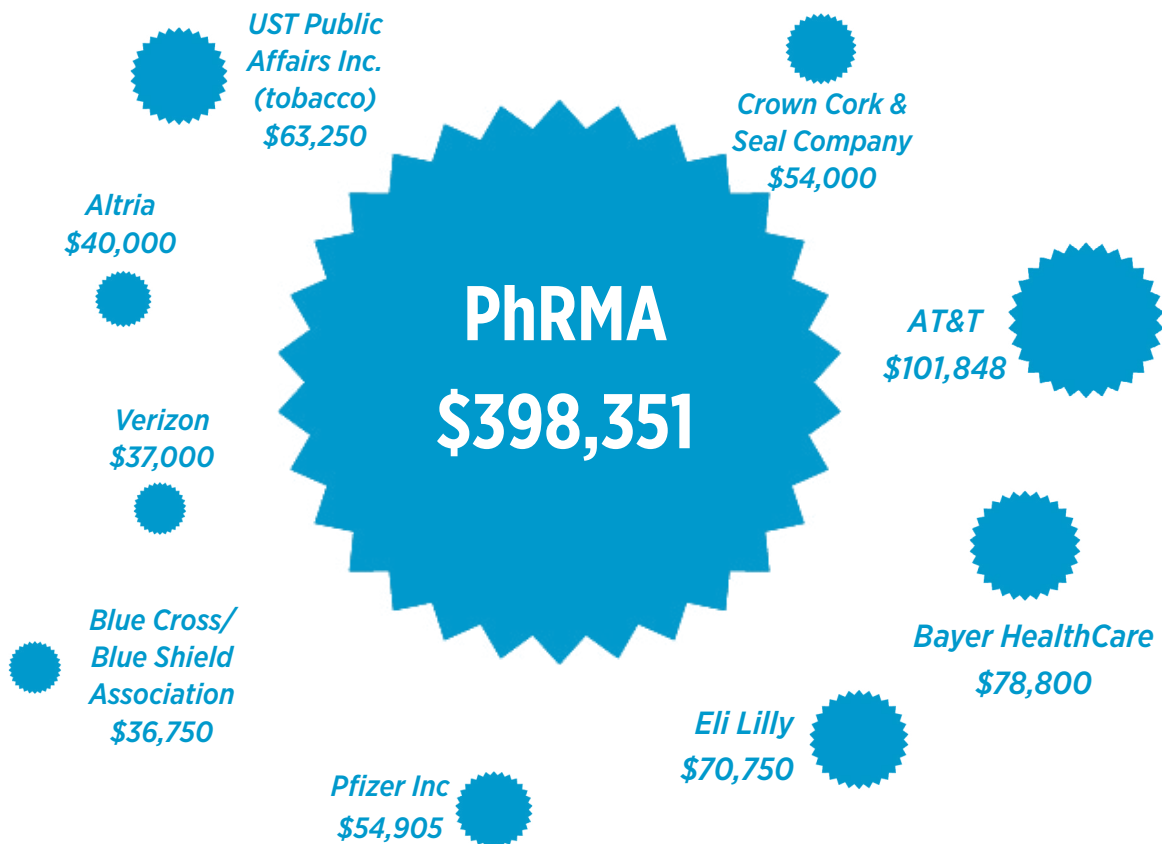

"With over thirty Louisiana Legislators serving on ALEC Task Forces, your support will allow the opportunity to attend conferences funded by the ALEC Scholarship Fund. These conferences are packed with educational speakers and presenters, and give the legislators a chance to interact with legislators from other states, including forums on Medicaid reform, sub-prime lending, online privacy, environmental education, pharmaceutical litigation, the crisis in state spending, global warming, and financial services and information exchange. All of these issues are import (sic) to the entire lobbying community." (emphasis added)

Clearly, ALEC leaders think it is appropriate that these gifts both help corporate lobbyists advance their agendas and are subsidized by taxpayers. But, if the slush fund revenue and expenses are not considered ALEC's revenue and expenses by the IRS, then how can ALEC claim that all this corporate money passing through its to fund for lawmakers' travel is tax-deductible?

Spotlight on Wisconsin

Unbeknownst to most state residents, ALEC's bylaws impose a "duty" on the state legislators and corporate reps it designates as state co-chairs both to raise money from companies for trips and get ALEC bills introduced.

Big Spending in a State Where a Lobbyist Can't Buy a Lawmaker Coffee

Before this year, Wisconsin was believed to have one of the strictest gift rules in the nation, a zero tolerance rule dating back decades. But secretly, through ALEC's slush fund, corporations gave $131,000 to pay for state legislators to attend meetings with corporate lobbyists at resorts from 2006 to 2008. Almost $117,000 was spent for airfare, hotel rooms, and other expenses of elected officials. Despite the state's "no cup of coffee" gift law, Wisconsin lawmakers were one of the "top five" state delegations in the country in amounts received from the ALEC corporate slush fund for lawmakers' trips.

But that tells only part of the story. When PhRMA gave $356,075 to ALEC's fund in 2010, it was told by ALEC to send the check to Wisconsin, not to ALEC's headquarters in Washington, DC. The street address was the same as that of ALEC's corporate co-chair for Wisconsin, Amy Boyer, a lobbyist who has represented a number of ALEC funders, such as Koch Industries and other energy companies. When confronted, ALEC said only $2,500 was for Wisconsin and the remaining $353,575 was for other states, but there are no public records to verify how that six-figure sum was spent.

“Myself, I always loved going to [ALEC] meetings because I always found new ideas. Then I’d take them back to Wisconsin, disguise them a little bit, and declare that ‘It’s mine.’” Tommy Thompson (2002)¹⁸

Citizens Can't Track the Gifts Received

The situation in Wisconsin also illustrates how difficult it is for concerned citizens to discover these gifts, because they are rarely reported as “gifts.”

At the time of PhRMA's big check, the ALEC legislative co-chair for Wisconsin was state Senator Scott Fitzgerald. In response to an open records request by CMD, his office later revealed that at least seven state legislators had received funds from ALEC in 2010 (Reps. Brett Davis, Robin Vos, Scott Suder, Steve Nass, Mike Huebsch, and Phil Montgomery, and Sens. Ted Kanavas, Leah Vukmir, and Randy Hopper). They received between $985 and $2,461 for trips filled with meetings with lobbyists. Only two legislators on that list disclosed that they got ALEC travel money on their “Statement of Economic Interests.” Some mentioned the ALEC funds in campaign filings. And some, like Sen. Randy Hopper, did not disclose it.

Disclosures Hide the Real Sources

Even where the receipt of money was disclosed, the source was listed as “ALEC,” not the companies actually bankrolling the trips. It is only through open records requests, not through legislators' filings, that the sources have been revealed. According to the document ALEC sent by email to Sen. Fitzgerald, the corporations funding Wisconsin legislators' trips in 2010 were PhRMA, Reynolds, Alliant Energy, Kraft Foods, AT&T,¹⁹ Diageo, 3M, Excel Energy, Allergan, MKT Engineering, T-Mobile, and the state telecom trade group. All of these corporations have state legislative agendas. Most of them gave $2,500 a piece to fund trips for legislators.

Surprise? ALEC Bills Get Pushed

When CMD examined Wisconsin's 2011-2012 legislative session, it found at least 32 bills or budget items reflecting ALEC bills were introduced—such as bills to restrict union dues collection, bar suits for death or injury from prescription drugs, aid the tobacco industry, limit telecom regulations, and restrict “voter ID”—and 21 became law.²⁰

ALEC's Role Was Hidden from Public

ALEC did not register as a lobbyist, but open records requests reveal it pushed for its bills to be introduced and passed, out of the sight of the public. For example, Governor Scott Walker—an ALEC alum—denied that his urgent omnibus “tort reform” bill was based on ALEC bills. But previously secret emails show ALEC told lawmakers Walker's proposal included “many” of their bills and urged that it be enacted. The law passed quickly; no one besides ALEC lawmakers and corporations knew at the time of ALEC's true role.

Complaints Filed

CMD filed a complaint with the Government Accountability Board in March 2012 arguing the scholarships violated gift laws. CMD also noted that a prior private ruling of the Board was contradicted by new evidence. That complaint is still pending. CMD and Common Cause also asked the state Attorney General to investigate ALEC lobbying.

A Look at Travel Fundraising in Ohio

In 2011, corporations gave at least at least $130,000 for trips to Ohio legislators, the largest travel fund known to have been raised in a single year for just one state.

Cozy Relationship between ALEC Lawmakers and Corporate Lobbyists

ALEC's state legislative co-chair for Ohio is Rep. John Adams, who is tasked like all ALEC state leaders with getting ALEC bills introduced and raising money for ALEC trips. Although open records requests do not reveal all the lawmaker travel that six-figure sum has funded, what is known is that Adams' office spent considerable time coordinating with corporate lobbyists who fund ALEC.

His Senior Legislative Aide, Kara Joseph, spent untold hours arranging for lawmakers to get tickets to a Cincinnati Reds game paid for by Time Warner Cable (TWC), separate from the slush fund. TWC is ALEC's Ohio corporate co-chair.

Ms. Joseph also worked with corporations like Diageo to arrange special dinners when Ohio lawmakers were traveling on corporate-funded scholarships to other cities. They were at restaurants like the steakhouse of gourmet celeb-chef John Besh at Harrah's Casino in New Orleans. (That dinner was paid for by lobbyists separate from the slush fund.)

In Return for Helping ALEC, Trips and Awards

Ms. Joseph was named ALEC's "Volunteer of the Year" in 2011, and she also received money from the slush fund to go on ALEC trips that year. Her emails about fundraising and lobbyist scheduling for ALEC events were conducted on government computers while she was being paid by Ohio taxpayers. Her boss, Rep. Adams, also received top honors from ALEC that year for advancing ALEC's agenda.

The Ohio ethics board—largely controlled by ALEC members—has refused to apply state gift rules to ALEC, despite evidence it should.

CMD, Progress Ohio, Common Cause, and People for the American Way have also issued a detailed report on the influence of ALEC corporations on the Ohio legislature. You can find the report online at www.alecexposed.org/wiki/Ohio.

Lawmakers Know Who Bankrolls Their Trips But Citizens Do Not

Records analyzed by D.B.A. Press and CMD show that several lawmakers also participated in raising funds from these corporations.²¹ Ms. Joseph also sent lawmakers a list of corporations and amounts of their gifts, and asked them to thank the lobbyists for “their generous contribution!”

This example is no outlier by a lawmaker’s staffer. In Arizona—where lawmakers received over $90,000 in trips secretly underwritten by corporations through ALEC in 2010 alone—open records request revealed that ALEC legislators like Rep. Debbie Lesko eagerly urged colleagues to get thank you notes out to the corporate lobbyists who give to the slush fund.

The American Friends Service Committee (AFSC) in Tucson has urged an investigation of “influence peddling” via the ALEC slush fund. “Any rational person can look at what these corporations are doing through ALEC and on their own and know that essentially for-profit corporations are writing legislation in Arizona,” AFSC’s Caroline Isaacs told D.B.A. Press.

The ones left out of the equation with the influence peddling through ALEC’s slush fund from ALEC companies and their lobbyists are ordinary citizens.

Ohio Rep. John Adams receives ALEC’s Legislator of the Year Award

Giving Thanks

Some lawmakers actually urge their colleagues who receive “scholarships” to send thank-you notes to their corporate benefactors.

“The format of the meetings provides the ideal climate for private sector-legislator communication. For four days, ALEC private sector members have the opportunity to share their thoughts and opinions on the crucial public policy issues facing their organizations.” ALEC Advertisement

What Can Be Done?

Without adequate regulation, ALEC's influence peddling for corporations will continue quietly out of the public's view, and its representatives will continue to duck questions about who is funding trips.

Plainly, ALEC has no intention of voluntarily disclosing its slush fund activity or changing how it does business.

For example, in a November 2010 interview, ALEC's Arizona public sector chair at the time, Arizona Senate President Bob Burns, refused to reveal the names of corporations funding travel for ALEC lawmakers.

He told Beau Hodai at D.B.A. Press:

“I prefer not to do that. Maybe they don't want that information shared...”

That's an astonishing assertion given the whole premise of disclosure laws to shine a light on the influence and actions of public officials.

Burns' private sector counterpart, ALEC state co-chair Smoldon of the Salt River Project, also refused to tell the press how much companies were paying for legislators' trips.

The information in this report was obtained through open records requests, but ALEC has recently switched to using a “Dropbox”-like process (a service for accessing files in the “cloud”) in an apparent attempt to keep many of its communications with lawmakers from becoming an official “record.” In addition, a number of elected officials are using personal accounts for emails from ALEC to evade disclosure; CMD and Common Cause filed a lawsuit in Wisconsin challenging this violation of the legal obligations of elected officials.

Left unchecked, this continued evasion of oversight means that the public—who should know what's going on—are left in the dark, while the legislators—who stand to be influenced by their benefactors' generosity—know exactly who's paying for their trips.

Some Legislators Urge More Disclosure

Two bills have been introduced this year to require more disclosure of ALEC “scholarships” for legislators.²²

Arizona

Earlier this year, a bill to shine a light on ALEC trips was introduced by Arizona Rep. Steve Farley. The “ALEC Accountability Act of 2012”²³ would require itemized disclosure of all gifts of “lodging, travel, and registration fees” for a legislator and family members, regardless of whether the gift is considered a reimbursement or called a “scholarship.” The name and address of the donor would also have to be disclosed. There is no minimum amount to trigger this reporting.²⁴

The bill would also require the government to post all financial disclosure reports on a website, and the legislature would be required to disclose all such benefits given to legislators.

Farley's bill made no progress in the Arizona statehouse, which is controlled by ALEC members. According to Farley, the “ALEC Accountability Act” was the only house bill to receive no committee assignment during the first legislative session of 2012.

Wisconsin

Rep. Mark Pocan's bill in Wisconsin would clarify that "lobbying" includes efforts to influence the development of model legislation, and that contacts between legislative offices and a group that "proposes uniform, model, suggested, or recommended legislation" count.²⁵ It would also clarify that legislators must disclose on their "statements of economic interests" anything received as a "scholarship."²⁶

Pocan's bill also requires that anyone providing anything for "scholarship" purposes to report it to the state accountability board within 90 days, to list the recipients, and to provide the names of any persons who contributed to the scholarship account within the past year. It would also restrict using tax dollars to pay ALEC membership dues.

This bill was referred to the Committee on Assembly Organization on February 23, 2012. No action was taken by that committee, which was chaired by two ALEC members: Reps. Jeff Fitzgerald and Scott Suder. Suder is one of ALEC's co-chairs for Wisconsin.

Rhode Island: A Different Tack

Although not a legislative initiative, it should be noted that this spring, John Marion, the Executive Director of Common Cause Rhode Island asked the state Ethics Commission to revise state rules in light of the IRS suit filed against ALEC by Common Cause and other information about ALEC that had arisen.

Common Cause urged the state to "require disclosure of gifts from non-interested persons that were received by a public official by virtue of their official position [and] proposed limiting the disclosure requirement to elected officials and gifts over twenty-five dollars."

Recommendations

To address the inherently unethical and potentially corrupting nature of ALEC scholarships and operations, the solution is simple:

Existing gift limits or bans should be applied to ALEC travel scholarships or modified to ensure that they do.

In addition, each ALEC slush fund expenditure and donor for past years should be immediately disclosed.

"ALEC is a corporate lobby masquerading as a public charity."

Common Cause President Bob Edgar

“Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it’s the only thing that ever has.” Margaret Mead

What can you do to help?

Contact the corporate funders of ALEC in your state and tell them to stop paying for legislators’ trips with lobbyists.

Contact your representatives and tell them that you object to ALEC’s corporate slush fund scheme, and demand that gifts of travel be covered under your state’s gift laws.

Host a screening of Bill Moyer’s documentary about ALEC, “The United States of ALEC,” in your home or neighborhood. More information is available at CommonCause.org and at BillMoyers.com. You can also view a short cartoon “ALEC Rock” that can be shown to give audiences an overview, available from ALECexposed.org.

In the coming months there is much to do.

The intense scrutiny ALEC has received over the last 15 months, on ALECexposed.org, through the work of Common Cause, and by the reporting of The Nation magazine and Beau Hodai, is unprecedented

At the same time, many state legislatures are in the hands of ALEC lawmakers in leadership positions. As with Ohio and Arizona, those legislators appear unwilling to limit their access to free trips paid for by corporations.

The corporate-funded trips for lawmakers funneled via ALEC will only be addressed when citizens and watchdog groups pursue every legal option available to halt them.

*The public data available for 2009 to 2011 reflects money in from four or fewer states; the data from 2006 to 2008 reflects data from all 50 states.

 PhRMA sent $356,075 to Wisconsin in 2010, earmarked for the "ALEC Scholarship Fund," but ALEC later claimed only $2,500 was for Wisconsin. The distribution among other states is not known.

Appendix 2: ALEC's All-Expenses Paid Vacations

2006

ALEC corporations gave $768,733 to fund legislator travel to resorts held at the three hotels below. In that calendar year, $634,791 was spent to pay for the airfare, hotel, and other travel expenses of state legislators and others.

Coeur D'Alene Resort, Spring Meeting

San Francisco Marriott Marquis, Summer Meeting

JW Marriott Phoenix Desert Ridge Resort & Spa, Winter Meeting

In 2007, ALEC corporations gave $609,445 to fund travel by legislators to Hilton Head, Philadelphia, and Washington, DC. In all, more than a half million dollars, $587,461, was spent paying for airfare, hotel rooms, and other travel expenses for state legislators and others to attend events at the resorts below or other locations.

ALEC corporations gave $616,636 to fly state legislators to ALEC meetings at resorts like the Arlington Resort & Spa in Hot Springs, Arkansas. Nearly all of that money, $593,654, was spent to cover airfare for legislators and hotel rooms for lawmakers and their families.

2009

The amount of money given by corporations to ALEC's slush fund or spent for travel by legislators in 2009 is not known. At least $41,000 was spent for the travel and expenses of Arizona legislators alone. Based on the average of the preceding three years, we estimated that at least $600,000 was spent; the actual figure remains hidden from the public.

2010

Incomplete public data is available to reveal the true extent of corporate funding of ALEC trips for state legislators in 2010. What is known from ALEC's federal tax filing is that it had a million dollars in corporate donations to give to legislators for travel at the beginning of the year: $1,042,629. Based on incomplete data from records requests, ALEC received at least $501,215 from corporations, including a check for $356,075 from PhRMA alone. At least $90,413 was spent just on Arizona lawmakers. Total corporate funding and slush fund spending figures remain hidden from the public.

Hilton at the Ballpark, St. Louis, Spring Meeting
Manchester Grand Hyatt San Diego, Summer Meeting
Grand Hyatt Washington, DC, Winter Meeting

According to ALEC's tax filing, it began 2011 with $1,023,726 from corporate checks available to spend on travel for lawmaker trips. There is incomplete data to reveal the total amount received that year from corporations, but at least $144,500 was definitely received. Based on prior years with complete data, it is estimated that ALEC spent around $600,000 paying travel expenses for state legislators, although the amount may be much higher because it added 500 new members after the 2010 mid-term elections.

Almost no data is available on the amount of money corporations have given to ALEC in 2012 or that has been spent funding trips for ALEC legislators. What is known is that ALEC has lost at least 41 major corporations as funders since ALEC's extreme agenda came under increased scrutiny. This spring Georgia Rep. Calvin Hill's staffer told ALEC legislators planning to travel to Salt Lake City for the summer gathering of lobbyists and lawmakers that, "Due to reduced participation by our private sector with our Georgia Scholarship Fund, we cannot commit to reimburse any specific amount for your attendance. . . ."

But for the defection of an unknown number of corporate donors, an estimated $600,000 would be anticipated to be spent on flights and hotel rooms for legislators from across the country. ALEC's winter "States and Nation" meeting will be held in Washington, DC, after the presidential election and will be at the Grand Hyatt.

Appendix 3: Frequent Funders of ALEC Junkets

More than 100 corporations have given to ALEC's slush fund for legislators' travel in recent years. The top donors for the three-year period (2006-2008) with the most complete data available are below, in alphabetical order:

Altria	Eli Lilly	Reynolds America/RJ
AT&T	Michelin North America	Reynolds
Bayer HealthCare	Northrop Grumman	Sprint Nextel
BellSouth	Novartis Corporation	State Farm
Blue Cross Blue Shield	Peabody Energy/Peabody	United Parcel Service
Association	Investments Corp.	UST Public Affairs Inc.
BP Corporation	Pfizer	Verizon
Crown Cork & Seal Company	PhRMA

Blue Cross Blue Shield announced earlier this year that it was no longer funding ALEC.

Here are profiles of ALEC's biggest junket funders, including an overview of how their corporate interests are advanced by ALEC bills.

PhRMA, the largest trade group of drug manufacturers, gave $42,276.87 between 2006 and 2008, and an additional $356,075 in 2010 to fund lawmakers' travel. The amounts it gave in 2009, 2011 and to date in 2012 are not known.

PhRMA, which stands for "Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America," has long had a seat on ALEC's corporate board, known as its "Private Enterprise Board." Its representative is Jeff Bond, Senior Vice President.

PhRMA is also on the Executive Committee of ALEC's "Health and Human Services Task Force," represented by Jeff Buel and Kristin Parde, according to information discovered by Common Cause. Parde received a Private Sector Member of the Year Award from ALEC in 2011. In addition to funding trips for state lawmakers, PhRMA was a "Chairman"-level sponsor of ALEC's 2011 summer meeting in New Orleans (a level of sponsorship that cost $50,000 in 2010). It also sponsored a plenary luncheon at that conference where its CEO John J. Castellani spoke.

PhRMA is one of the largest and most influential lobbying organizations in the nation. Representing 48 pharmaceutical companies, PhRMA has several registered lobbyists on staff and contracts with PR firms to promote its members' interests. PhRMA has a record of hiding its lobbying and PR activities, often by paying other organizations with names like the "United Seniors Association" (USA) or the "Consumer Alliance" to advocate industry-friendly policies. PhRMA reported spending $18,910,000 on lobbying in 2011.

A number of ALEC bills come from PhRMA's legislative wish list, including bills that would limit the liability of pharmaceutical manufacturers if their drugs kill or injure Americans. Another ALEC proposal supports voluntary compliance versus mandatory laws for drug companies (the "Resolution In Support of the PhRMA Code and Corporate Self Regulation.").

Appendix 3: Frequent Funders of ALEC Junkets

AT&T, the world's largest communications company, gave $97,848 to fund trips for ALEC lawmakers between 2006 and 2008. The total amount of funding AT&T has provided ALEC is unknown.

AT&T has a seat on ALEC's corporate board, represented by William Leahy, Vice President of State and Legislative Affairs.

AT&T also serves as the private-sector ALEC Co-Chair for the states of Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas.

The company has 242,380 employees worldwide as of August 2012 and reported annual sales of $114.8 billion in 2011. AT&T operates in 60 countries and 850 cities worldwide. AT&T services more than 68 million phone lines and it is the largest wireless carrier in the U.S. Its chairman and CEO is Randall Stephenson.

Numerous ALEC bills attempt to deregulate telecommunications, a high priority for AT&T.

Bayer Health Care gave $78,800 to fund junkets for ALEC legislators between 2006 and 2008. The amount of funding Bayer has provided ALEC is not known.

Bayer has a seat on ALEC's corporate board, represented by Sandy Oliver, its Vice President of Public Policy and Government Affairs. Oliver is First Vice Chairman of ALEC's corporate board. Bayer is also the ALEC Corporate Co-Chair for the states of Connecticut, Massachusetts, Nevada, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and Texas.

The company, which is part of Bayer AG, has about 112,300 employees worldwide as of August 2012, and reported annual sales of $36.5 billion in 2011. Bayer AG is a global holding company for a number of pharmaceutical, biotechnology, agrochemicals, healthcare, plastics and other materials subsidiaries. The company operates in the United States through the Bayer Corporation. Bayer, also referred to as the Bayer Group, operates in some 315 companies worldwide. It is one of the "Big 6" "biotech" corporations, along with BASF, Dupont, Dow Chemical Company, Syngenta, and Monsanto (so called because they dominate the world's agricultural seed, pesticide and biotechnology industries). Marijn Dekkers is Bayer's chairman and CEO.

Appendix 3: Frequent Funders of ALEC Junkets

Eli Lilly, a global drug company, gave ALEC $71,750 to fund travel for ALEC legislators during 2006-2008.

In addition, Lilly was a “Trustee” level sponsor of ALEC’s 2010 Annual Conference, and gave ALEC a $20,000 grant in 2008 to fund a project described as “Improving Outcomes or Undermining Quality? A Look at ‘Comparative Effectiveness Research’ in Medicine.” The total amount of funding Lilly has given ALEC is unknown.

Lilly is best known for the anti-depressant Prozac. Other top drugs include Zyprexa (schizophrenia and bipolar disorder), Cymbalta (depression), Gemzar, Alimta (cancer), Humalog insulin and the osteoporosis medication Evista. The company also manufactures cardiovascular and anti-infective pharmaceuticals as well as animal health products. It employs 38,080 people worldwide as of February 2012 and reported annual sales of $24.3 billion in 2011. Its chairman, president and CEO is John C. Lechleiter.

A number of ALEC bills would make it harder for Americans to hold drug companies accountable for death or injuries caused by prescription and over-the-counter drugs. One would even bar suit against makers of FDA approved drugs, even if the drugs kill or injure Americans. ALEC also favors voluntary compliance versus mandatory laws to govern drug companies

UST Public Affairs, Inc., which was affiliated with one of the world’s largest tobacco companies, gave ALEC $63,250 to fund trips for state lawmakers between 2006 and 2008. UST Inc. was purchased by Altria on January 6, 2009. UST was led by Murray M. Kessler, employed over 4,500 people worldwide and reported annual sales of almost $1.5 billion before Altria bought it.

UST Public Affairs was represented on ALEC’s corporate board by W. Preston Baldwin, UST’s Vice President for Public Affairs. Baldwin left UST to form “Centerpoint 360,” a lobbying firm. Baldwin is the Chairman of ALEC’s corporate board as of 2012. The total amount of funding provided by UST to ALEC over the years is not known.

UST Inc. was a holding company whose subsidiaries included United States Tobacco Company, U.S. Smokeless Tobacco Company and International Wine & Spirits Ltd., which in turn was a holding company of Chateau Ste. Michelle Wine Estates, a vintner of premium wines. UST and its leaders were active in Republican political donor circles.

Tobacco companies like UST have been long-term funders of ALEC’s legislative agenda, dating back at least to the 1980s. Key parts of that agenda have included making it harder for Americans to win product liability suits against the manufacturers of dangerous products like cigarettes that kill and harm Americans, and passing other laws that benefit other tobacco products and affect public health.

Appendix 3: Frequent Funders of ALEC Junkets

Pfizer Inc., the world's largest drug seller, gave ALEC $54,905.72 to fund junkets for state lawmakers between 2006 and 2008. Pfizer was a "Vice Chairman" level sponsor of ALEC's 2011 Annual Conference in New Orleans. The total amount of funding provided to ALEC over the years is unknown. Pfizer has a seat on ALEC's corporate board, represented by Robert Jones, Director of Government Relations and Public Affairs.

Pfizer, which is perhaps best known for its drugs Viagra and Lipitor, has 120,700 employees worldwide as of August 2012 and reported annual sales of $67.4 billion in 2011. Its CEO is Ian Read.

A number of ALEC bills would make it harder for Americans to hold drug companies accountable for death or injuries caused by prescription and over-the-counter drugs. As noted above, one ALEC bill would even bar suit against makers of FDA-approved drugs, even if the drugs kill or injure Americans. ALEC also favors voluntary compliance versus mandatory laws to govern drug companies.

Crown Cork & Seal Company, a global company fighting to change the laws regarding asbestos, among other things, gave ALEC $54,000 to pay for trips for lawmakers between 2006 and 2008. The total amount of funding that Crown Cork has given ALEC is not known.

Crown has paid for a seat on ALEC's "Civil Justice Task Force," which has produced numerous bills to make it harder for Americans to hold companies accountable for damages caused by dangerous products like asbestos. Richard Krzyzanowski, General Counsel/ Emeritus, and William T. Gallagher, Esq., General Counsel, represent Crown on that task force.

Crown Holdings Inc., formerly Crown Cork & Seal Company, is an American company producing packaging. The company is the world's largest packaging company, and as of 2008, was operating 154 plants in 42 countries, employing over 24,000 people. It claims to manufacture one out of every five beverage cans used in the world, and one out of every three food cans used in North America and Europe. It reported annual sales of $8.6 billion in 2011 and employs 20,655 people worldwide as of February 2012.

Altria

Altria, formerly Philip Morris, is the world's largest tobacco company. It gave ALEC $40,000 to pay for trips for state lawmakers between 2006 and 2008.

Altria was a "Chairman" level sponsor of the 2011 ALEC Annual Conference in New Orleans (a sponsorship that required a $50,000 donation in 2010). Altria also served as a sponsor of the Louisiana Welcome Reception at the 2011 ALEC Annual Meeting, for an untold sum. The amount of funding Altria and its predecessor, Philip Morris, have provided to ALEC over the years is not publicly known.

Altria has a seat on ALEC's corporate board. Daniel Smith, the Western Regional Director of Altria Client Services, represents the corporation on the board as of 2012. Toby Spangler, a lobbyist with Altria Client Services, represented the corporation on ALEC's corporate board in 2011. Altria's subsidiary Philip Morris International is listed as the Private Sector Chair of ALEC's "International Relations Task Force" as of 2012.

Altria controls about half of the U.S. tobacco market. It reported annual sales of $16.6 billion in 2011 and employs 9,900 people worldwide as of February 2012. Its chairman and CEO is Martin J. Barrington. As noted above, tobacco companies like Altria/Philip Morris and Reynolds, have been long-term funders of ALEC's legislative agenda, dating back at least to the 1980s, and key parts of that agenda favor tobacco interests.

Appendix 3: Frequent Funders of ALEC Junkets

Verizon, one of the largest telecommunications companies in the U.S., gave ALEC $37,000 to fund trips for lawmakers between 2006 and 2008. The total amount of funding Verizon has provided to ALEC over the years is unknown.

Verizon has a seat on ALEC's corporate board and it is the ALEC Corporate Co-Chair for Virginia and Wyoming. Verizon has also been a member of ALEC's "Communications and Technology Task Force."

ALEC's current executive director, Ronald Scheberle, worked "for 31 years as a key member of the Verizon and GTE Federal and State Governmental Affairs Advocacy Team."

Verizon reported annual sales of $110.8 billion in 2011 and has over 180,000 employees worldwide as of July 2012. Its CEO is Lowell C. McAdam.

Numerous ALEC bills attempt to deregulate telecommunications.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association (BC/BSA), the lobbying group for one of the largest providers of health insurance plans in the U.S., gave $36,750 to fund junkets for ALEC legislators between 2006 and 2008. The total amount of funding BC/BSA provided to ALEC over the years is not known. It announced this spring that it has stopped funding ALEC.

BC/BSA was also a "Director" level sponsor of 2011 ALEC Annual Conference, which in 2010 cost $10,000.

BC/BSA, whose associated nonprofit BC/BS administers Medicaid for the federal government, had previously worked with ALEC to draft a resolution that would use the issue of states' rights to make health care reform (and regulation of the insurance industry) unconstitutional. ALEC drafted and distributed model legislation in the form of a resolution that would effectively make both a federally created health insurance exchange and a public health insurance option illegal under the 10th Amendment to the Constitution, which guarantees certain non-specific rights to the states. Joan Gardner, a senior executive at BC/BSA admitted playing a key role in crafting the resolution. ALEC's "Tenth Amendment/health care resolution" has been introduced in several states.

Scott Serota is the Chief Executive Officer of BC/BS itself, which has reported revenue of over $330 million and more than 800 employees. It insures directly or indirectly nearly one-third of the U.S. population, or approximately 99 million Americans.

More details on these and other ALEC corporations are available at www.ALECexposed.org.
