SUMMARY
This legislation requires any United States citizen desiring to vote in a state to provide proof of identity at the polls, outlines permissible provisional ballots, and optionally provides for a free ID to those who do not have a driver's license.

[In its Taxpayer and Citizen Protection Act, ALEC also outlines suggested requirements for proof of citizenship when registering to vote.]

[Because numerous United States Supreme Court decisions have been interpreted to hold that government may not require citizens to pay any fee in exchange for the right to vote, bill drafters may wish to include a section that mandates the provision of publicly funded ID cards without cost to those citizens who request them.

This bill would serve to disenfranchise many low-income, minority, elderly, and student voters, many of whom do not have driver's licenses. While the bill provides for free IDs, in many states the offices that would provide IDs are not located near the communities that would have the greatest needs and/or keep irregular hours. Taking the time to get an ID would be burdensome and many individuals who might otherwise vote would not take the time or be aware of the need to get an ID in advance of the election date.

The bill allows a voter to cast a provisional ballot without an ID, but the voter must still present an ID within a week or their vote will not be counted. Section 2(d)(1)(B) gives the County Board of Election Commissioners discretion about whether to count a provisional ballot not supported by ID, opening the door to partisan wrangling with final vote counts.

Wisconsin passed a similar Voter ID bill in 2011 with the support of Governor Scott Walker. The Wisconsin bill goes further than this one by requiring that the driver's license or identification card include a person's current address (even if the ID is not expired), making voting difficult for students or low-income individuals who move during the year but have proof of residence through utility bills for example.
